Affordable Housing Update

Housing advocates, housing providers, and City officials have done considerable work in recent years to help shape public policy and, equally important, actually build affordable housing units.

The City of Ashland has a number of programs, incentives, and regulations in place to promote the development of affordable housing. The main tools that the City utilizes to promote the development of affordable housing are a combination of federal funds, regulations, and incentives to either include affordable units in market rate developments or deed restrict units for affordability through:

Driving Tip

Roughly one out of every four vehicle incidents involves backing. Considering the average driver operates in reverse less than a mile every year, this statistic is even more alarming. The following tips will help you avoid collisions while backing:

- Avoid backing whenever possible. Drivers should plan ahead to reduce backing operations in the first place.
- Try to position the vehicle to avoid backing.
- If backing cannot be avoided, it is better to back in upon arrival than to back out later while departing.
- Conduct a visual walk-around of the vehicle to identify potential hazards.
- Whenever available, use a passenger to guide you during backing operations.
- Always back slowly while continuously looking and listening for signs of trouble.

- Density Bonuses
- Waiving fees for affordable development (fee deferral program)
- Annexation and Zone change regulations that pertain to land use, developments, and Condo Conversions
- Direct Subsidy (through the Community Development Block Grant Program)

Similarly, the City of Ashland has partnered with area non-profits including Access, Inc., Ashland Community Land Trust, Habitat for Humanity, the Housing Authority of Jackson County, and Rogue Valley Community Development Corporation (RVDC) to develop new homeownership and rental units. These units are available only to those families who are income qualified at or below 80% of Area Median Income. Median Income for the Medford-Ashland MSA is $52,900 for a family of four.

Since 2004, the City of Ashland has leveraged its allotment of Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) entitlement funds with federal, state, and private funding sources, and has offered innovative programs and incentives to non-profits and private developers to insure that a percentage of new single family and multi-family housing developments be affordable to families with low and moderate incomes. These programs have resulted in the addition of 70 new deed restricted affordable workforce housing units added to the City's inventory of below market units. An additional 51 units have been proposed or are in various stages of construction.

The City of Ashland continues to promote existing programs while actively pursuing new and innovative ways to encourage the development of affordable housing. Through fostering relationships with area non-profits, affordable housing developers, and private developers the City works to accommodate their needs while fulfilling its own affordable housing goals.

The City endeavors to meet the challenges of providing affordable housing in the face of a changing market through the reduction of regulatory barriers to affordable Continuously check all mirrors while backing.

All backing accidents are preventable. The key is to plan ahead to avoid backing in the first place. Only back up as your last resort. Accidents hurt— safety doesn't. ▼
