

Welcome to the White Rabbit Trailhead

Lewis Loops: Gyre and Gimble Amazing views of Mt. Ashland and Mt. McLoughlin!

- Hike .33 mile on White Rabbit to Caterpillar. Turn right (south).
- Follow Caterpillar (shared trail) .75 mile to Ashland Loop Road-USFS 2060.
- Cross Ashland Loop Road-USFS 2060 to Caterpillar trail (uphill bike traffic).
- Hike .25 mile to the intersection with Lewis Loops, turn right onto Lewis Loops (hiker/equestrian use).
- Continue 120 feet, turn left (south) onto the Gyre Loop.
- From viewpoint, continue .5 mile to the intersection with Gimble Loop.
OPTIONAL: Take Gimble for 1 additional mile with a small loop.
- Turn left (east) on Gyre for .5 mile to the Caterpillar trail.
- Turn left (north) on Caterpillar trail (uphill bike traffic) and continue downhill to the intersection with Ashland Loop Road-USFS 2060.
- Turn left, and continue down the road to rejoin the White Rabbit Trailhead. Taking the road avoids most mountain bike traffic coming from behind.

Begin at White Rabbit to Caterpillar Loop, 3.5 miles total ~xxx' gain/loss

White Rabbit - Mike Uhtoff Lollipop A variety of terrain with nice views of Grizzly Peak.

- From White Rabbit pedestrian trail, continue .33 mile to the intersection with Caterpillar trail. Turn left to stay on the White Rabbit trail.
- White Rabbit proceeds east for about .66 mile gently up with some steep down, eventually climbing to a viewpoint with several benches in the area.
- While you can immediately head back from here along the Mike Uhtoff trail, it is worth exploring several of the viewpoints and the aptly named Looking Glass trail, located just a bit further along the White Rabbit trail. After enjoying the views, return via the Mike Uhtoff trail.

Begin at White Rabbit to Mike Uhtoff Lollipop, 2 miles total ~xxx' gain/loss

USFS 2060 - Lizard - Caterpillar Loop with awesome bike-only flow trail riding.

- From White Rabbit Trailhead, ride up Ashland Loop Road - USFS 2060 (past the yellow gate) just over 1 mile to the Lamb Mine intersection.
- At Lamb Saddle, turn right (north) onto Caterpillar trail (multi-use).
- After a .25-mile gentle climb, turn right onto the Lizard trail (bike only).
- Enjoy the swoopy downhill curves of Lizard for .25 mile before crossing Caterpillar trail.
- Cross USFS 2060 to rejoin the Caterpillar trail - a shared use trail.
- At the next intersection, turn left onto Rabbit Hole trail for a few more banked curves before returning to the White Rabbit Trailhead.

Begin at Ashland Loop Road-USFS 2060 Loop, 2 miles total ~xxx' gain/loss